WHAT MILADY WEARS
Dance Frocks and Afternoon Gowns Worn By Women of Fashion Attract the Artistic Eye.

With the sudden changes from cold to heat and back to cold again, which have been the order of the day in the weather these past weeks, every style of frock may be seen. The evening gown is, of course, much in evidence at the many dances which are held in the clubs and hotels of the suburbs, which form so important a part in the life of Philadelphia's maid and matrons.

Miss Katharine A. Bowie, a debutante of this year, wears a girlish gown of creamy lace, the skirt of which is made in a three-tier effect. The dainty bodice is cut in a surplice shape, and is joined to the skirt by a wide girle of shirred satin. Another dainty white frock is worn by Miss Pauline Disston, who is a petite and dainty type of young girl. The little gown is of cobwebby lace, and is trimmed here and there with tiny bunches of rosebuds.

Another attractive evening gown is that worn by Mrs. Gilbert Harvey. The skirt is made of
